TO: THE CALIFORNIA CRIMINAL JUSTICE COMMUNITY

I am pleased to provide you with the California Department of Justice (DOJ) Directory of Services. This publication contains important reference material that will allow you to access the wide variety of quality services provided by the dedicated professionals in my department.

This publication is also now available on the California Law Enforcement Web (CLEW) or Law Enforcement Agency (LEA) Web, and Attorney General's Legal Net web sites where camera-ready masters can be printed out and used to print multiple copies.

As Attorney General, I have had the privilege to visit with law enforcement leaders, criminal justice administrators and countless citizens from each of California's 58 counties. During our meetings, one constant theme that I hear is the appreciation of our clients-the public and law enforcement-for the level and quality of services we provide.

DOJ is always seeking ways to improve our organization and will continue finding ways to enhance our assistance to you and the people of California. It is our mission and commitment to help ensure you have at your disposal the most accurate information, innovative crime fighting resources and state-of-the-art technology you need to keep Californians safe from the serious threats posed by gangs, drugs and crime.

Together, we can continue to make California a safer place.

Sincerely,

ANTI-TERRORISM INTELLIGENCE

The Criminal Intelligence Bureau formed an Anti-Terrorism Intelligence Program in the wake of the September 11 attack on the World Trade Center and the Pentagon to provide law enforcement with statewide intelligence support to combat terrorism. The Bureau works in close cooperation with the California Office of Homeland Security, the California Highway Patrol, the Federal Bureau of Investigation, the Federal Department of Homeland Security, and other local, state and federal law enforcement agencies to ensure the rapid sharing of anti-terrorism intelligence.

Through this program, law enforcement agencies in California can obtain information on terrorist threats and activities anywhere in the state through a secure central database. Trained intelligence professionals analyze potential terrorism information and assess the implications for the health and safety of Californians. Reliable information that meets the stringent guidelines for intelligence gathering and civil rights protections will be made available only to authorized local, state and federal law enforcement personnel as necessary to protect California from the risk of criminal terrorist activity.

CRIMINAL HISTORY RECORDS

The Department's criminal history system is a summary of arrests, dispositions and custodies for every person with a California criminal record. The Department also maintains applicant records. Currently, there are three types of records kept within the Department: manual records, automated records and hybrid records. The Department maintains these records and disseminates record information to authorized criminal justice and applicant regulatory agencies. The Master Name Index (MNI) in the Automated Criminal History System (ACHS) provides an index to all records - manual, hybrid and automated.

SERVICES

- Manual Records - These are typically all-applicant records or criminal records established before the existence of the ACHS, and for which there has been no recent activity. Each folder contains a typed rap sheet or compilation of that subject's applicant and/or criminal activity. Even though the record is manual, the person's name, State Identification Number (SID), type of record (applicant or criminal), and certain personal information are available on the ACHS. For manual records, the SID is preceded by the letter "M" indicating the record is manual, and agencies need to contact the Command Center at the Department of Justice at (916)227-3244 to obtain a copy of the record.
- Automated Records - These are applicant and criminal records established subsequent to the implementation of the ACHS and contain the subject's entire criminal and applicant history. For automated records, the SID is preceded by an "A" to indicate the entire record is automated.
- Hybrid (partially automated) Records - These are applicant and criminal records originally established as manual records, but any new activity has been recorded on the ACHS. For hybrid records, the SID is preceded by a "H" to indicate the record is a hybrid. A hybrid inquiry into the ACHS will show the subject's most recent criminal and applicant activity, with a notation that the record is only partially automated, and instructions on how to obtain the manual portion of the record.

CRIMINAL JUSTICE STATISTICS CENTER

Per California Penal Code Sections 13010 - 13012, the Criminal Justice Statistics Center (CJSC) is responsible for providing a reliable set of statistics describing the nature and extent of crime and criminal justice in California.

CJSC is comprised of the Statistical Data Center (SDC) and the Statistical Analysis Center (SAC).

The Statistical Data Center maintains statewide criminal justice statistical information collected from more than 1,000 California law enforcement agencies. SDC evaluates, verifies, and ensures the integrity of the data before providing it to the Statistical Analysis Center. Data collected include information on crimes, arrests, homicide, arson, domestic violence-related calls for assistance, hate crimes, adult probation, citizens complaints against peace officers, violent crimes committed against senior citizens, death in custody, law enforcement personnel, juvenile court and probation, law enforcement officers killed or assaulted, adult felony arrest dispositions, concealable weapons charges, and anti-reproductive rights crime.

The Statistical Analysis Center is responsible for the dissemination, interpretation and analysis of the criminal justice data that is collected by the SDC. Unit personnel seek to determine trends, formulate projections, and evaluate the effectiveness of programs and policies. These analyses are offered in the form of legislatively mandated publications, special studies, or responses tailored to special requests. Annual publications provide statistical profiles of criminal justice activities in each of California's 58 counties and statewide analyses of crime and delinquency, homicide, hate crime, and concealable firearms charges. In addition, a number of special studies are conducted each year.

SERVICES

- Provides training to law enforcement agencies on how to report statistical data.
- Provides statistical reporting audits to contributing agencies.
- Provides interpretation and analysis of the criminal justice data through annual publications and a website: <http://caag.state.ca.us/cjsc>

CRIMINAL RECORD PURGE

The Department of Justice established Criminal Record Purge activities in 1974 as a one-time project designed to eliminate old and outdated records. The Department then became the first agency in the United States to implement an ongoing criminal record retention and purge program. The policy, which governs the purging of criminal records, was originally set by an inter-divisional committee on criminal records, made up of various law enforcement officials and private citizens.

SERVICES

- Reviews various criminal history records to implement the Department's purge criteria. Records identified with non-criminal inquiries, such as applicant fingerprint background checks and record review requests, are routinely reviewed. If qualified, these records are purged before a response is made. The Department's purge criteria are listed below:
 - All criminal records except those that have been sealed or contain specified marijuana charges described below are retained by the Department until the subject reaches the age of 100.
 - Health and Safety Code Section 11361.5 requires destruction of certain marijuana and marijuana-related entries within two years of the date of conviction or the date of arrest if there was no conviction.
 - Health and Safety Code Section 11361.5(b) requires the Department to remove specified entries from its records upon application by the subject of the record. Any person arrested or convicted for any of the charges specified in Health and Safety Code Section 11361.5(b) may petition the Department to destroy his/her record. Form BCII 8033, "Application to Destroy Arrest/Conviction Records," is available from the Record Management Unit. Additionally, the Department is under court order to remove these entries from any record prior to dissemination to any entity.
- Notifies the FBI when specific arrests and/or entire records are purged from the Department's files.

DATA BASE AUDITS

The Department of Justice (DOJ) and the FBI's National Crime Information Center (NCIC) have established policies, standards and regulations to ensure the integrity of information in their data bases. As a result, the Data Base Audits Section (DBAS) is responsible for conducting biennial audits of agencies that maintain and access information in NCIC and DOJ's Criminal Justice Information System (CJIS).

The on-site audit consists of a review of agency supporting documentation, record keeping procedures and compliance with CJIS and NCIC data base standards. It includes a comparison of selected online data base entries maintained in the Stolen Vehicle, Stolen Boat, Automated Firearms, Wanted Persons, Domestic Violence Restraining Order System, and Missing Persons systems against the agency's master file. The record comparison process concentrates on invalid, inaccurate, incomplete, undocumented records and reports not located. Through detection of errors and omissions in automated records and securing corrections by the contributor, the quality of information in the data bases is improved; the risk of inappropriate arrests or property seizures is diminished; and the apprehension and/or return of wanted and missing persons is increased.

Court decisions have assigned liability to the originators of erroneous records, the recipients of the records, and providers of law enforcement data bases. Courts have directed participants to ensure that the information exchanged is accurate, complete, timely, and current. By improving the quality of records in the various data bases, the audits reduce the risk of civil liability to federal and state providers of the data and to the agencies that use the data.

SERVICES

- Completes audits to ensure compliance with established policies, regulations and procedures as they relate to CJIS and NCIC data base records.
- Reports findings of audits to the FBI/NCIC, the Department of Justice, and local agency management.

DOMESTIC VIOLENCE RESTRAINING ORDER SYSTEM (DVROS)

The Domestic Violence Restraining Order System (DVROS) is a statewide database designed to store information identifying persons named in restraining orders. The DVROS is accessible via the California Law Enforcement Telecommunications System (CLETS) 24 hours a day, seven days a week. Information in the DVROS is used by law enforcement to identify persons named in restraining orders and to receive the terms and conditions of the restraining orders. The DVROS is accessed by the Department of Justice (DOJ) Dealer Record of Sale (DROS) Denial Review Unit to process DROS documents for firearms clearances. Penal Code section 12021(g) prohibits any person identified as the subject of certain restraining orders from possessing, owning, purchasing, or receiving firearms. The DVROS is also accessed by our Superior Courts, district attorneys/city attorneys for information on respondents/defendants.

The DVROS became operational on February 4, 1991. Over the years, the types of restraining orders mandated by law for entry into the system have increased from two to 12. On December 1, 1999, DOJ completed an interface to allow the DVROS to programmatically forward restraining order information to the Federal Bureau of Investigation's (FBI) National Crime Information Center (NCIC) Protection Order File.

The DVROS allows reported violations of restraining orders to be added to the existing restraining order record in the DVROS. On April 4, 2002, this enhancement became operational and is known as the violation message. The violation message has been designed to allow law enforcement and criminal justice agencies the capability to enter reported restraining order violations onto any record in the DVROS.

The DVROS was enhanced to include a history of records. Records will remain in the DVROS history file for five years after the date of expiration or cancellation. The DVROS history file became operational on May 22, 2003.

SERVICES

- Conducts statewide information seminars with law enforcement, courts, district attorneys' offices, and victim/witness centers about the entry of information into the DVROS, the various types of restraining orders, and new and proposed legislation concerning domestic violence.
- Assists law enforcement agencies with entry and update transactions into DVROS.
- Provides a central repository of domestic violence restraining orders and their possible violations for rapid retrieval by law enforcement agencies.
- Provides information to the DROS Denial Review Unit for firearms clearance purposes.

- Notifies agencies if the subject of their DVROS record attempts to purchase a firearm.

GAMBLING CONTROL

The Division of Gambling Control regulates legal gambling activities in California to ensure that gaming is conducted honestly, competitively and free from criminal and corruptive elements and in compliance with the State Gambling Control Act. The Division's responsibilities fall into two general categories: licensing/compliance and enforcement. Licensing staff investigate the qualifications of individuals who apply for state gambling licenses to determine whether they are suitable for licensure. This includes cardroom owners and key employees. Compliance and Enforcement Special Agents establish a field presence and monitor gambling operations to ensure they are in compliance with the law bringing unsuitable persons to the attention of the Gambling Control Commission to assure they are not permitted to associate with gambling activities.

In March 2000, the California voters passed Proposition 1A permitting Class III gaming on Tribal land. While the Tribe maintains the primary responsibility for onsite regulation, the State is responsible for ensuring compliance with all aspects of the Tribal/State compact, including ensuring all slot machines meet established technical standards.

RECORD IMPROVEMENT AND FIELD LIAISON

The Record Improvement and Field Liaison (RIFL) Program is responsible for researching and analyzing the level and quality of arrest and disposition reporting to the California Department of Justice (DOJ) by criminal justice agencies to ensure that criminal history records are complete and accurate. Field staff assist agencies in the planning, procurement, installation, testing, and connection of live scan equipment. In addition, they conduct training in the operation and maintenance of the live scan equipment. Staff have coordinated the installation and the on-line connection of over 1,700 of these terminals statewide.

STATEWIDE INVESTIGATIVE NETWORKING SYSTEM (SINS)

SINS was designed for and by law enforcement to provide a means for managing and tracking suspects and their activities. This highly sophisticated and integrated system provides critical assistance in the investigation and prosecution of criminal cases by facilitating tracking and geographically displaying criminal activity on large monitors. Its major technology components include: a critical event and mapping analytical module, an intelligence module, a case information management module, an access management module and a highly secure network.

SERVICES

SINS serves the law enforcement community through these major technology components:

- GEMS is a geographic event information (mapping) system which, when used in conjunction with other SINS components, presents a graphical display of planned enforcement operations.
- CEV is a deconfliction application component in which planned enforcement activities are stored and maintained. Used in conjunction with the SINS GEMS application component, upcoming events are monitored for possibilities of potentially dangerous conflicting law enforcement operations.
- RISSNET II is an intelligence application component that serves as: 1) the Western States Information Network (WSIN) region-wide repository for the narcotic intelligence for California, Oregon, Alaska, Hawaii and Washington states; and, 2) the California Attorney General's statewide non-narcotic intelligence component Automated Criminal Intelligence Index (ACII). The ACII database also houses criminal intelligence data for the Law Enforcement Intelligence Unit (LEIU), an international law enforcement association. Both components facilitate integrated access to criminal intelligence throughout the country.
- CIMS is an application designed to manage the enforcement and investigation aspects of an agent's case development process. It is designed to encourage and support cross sharing and cross-case analysis.
- AGREP is an access management component and the mechanism used to manage authorized SINS users, as well as access to the SINS applications.
- SWBSADIS is designed to facilitate integrated access to other state systems, facilitating sharing of counter-drug and criminal information between California, Arizona, New Mexico, and Texas.

- SINS HELP DESK is a service provided to the SINS participants to answer questions or assist with problem resolution relating to equipment, system, network or use of applications above.

STOLEN VEHICLE/BOAT UNIT

The Stolen Vehicle System (SVS) and the Automated Boat System (ABS) are online statewide, centralized data bases that contain records of stolen vehicles, boats, and airplanes. The statewide systems are accessible by law enforcement 24 hours a day via the California Law Enforcement Telecommunications System (CLETS).

When a stolen vehicle or boat, felony vehicle, stolen or lost license plate(s), or stolen vehicle or boat part(s) is reported to a law enforcement agency in California, it is entered into SVS or ABS. When these records are entered by the agency, they are transmitted by CLETS to the Stolen Vehicle Unit (SVU). Personnel in the SVU check the data in these entries for correct formats and data field codes, according to the Criminal Justice Information System (CJIS) Manual. If the record indicates a stolen or felony vehicle, or stolen boat, SVU personnel will use the National Insurance Crime Bureau manuals and other reference materials, as well as the Department of Motor Vehicles (DMV) registration files to ensure the accuracy of the entry in the database.

The SVS/ABS also has an offline historical data base containing canceled or cleared transactions of stolen and felony vehicle records, vehicle parts records, stolen boat records, and boat parts records. Records in the historical data base are stored offline on magnetic tape and are retained for seven years, and may be accessed by special request.

SERVICES

- Provides local agency access to a statewide centralized repository of records of stolen vehicles, stolen license plates, stolen vehicle parts, felony vehicles, repossessed vehicles, impounded vehicles, lost vehicles, stolen construction equipment, stolen farm equipment, stolen boats, stolen boat parts, stolen airplanes, and vehicles associated with missing persons.
- Notifies the registered and legal owner(s) of vehicles stored over 120 hours, if the storing agency has been unable to make notification (per CVC 22854).
- Notifies the registered and legal owner(s) of vehicles stored in garages over 30 days as to the condition and location of the vehicle (per CVC 10652).
- Receives notices of acquisition from licensed dismantlers (per CVC 11520). The vehicles are checked for stolen status before dismantling begins.
- Makes a comparative analysis of stolen vehicle and stolen boat entries with the DMV registration records.
- Conducts special searches of automated data bases to assist in law enforcement investigations.
- Places a Department of Justice “stop,” “restraint,” or “stop referral” on DMV registration files to prevent the re-registration of vehicles that have been reported stolen.

- Provides 24-hour technical assistance on system use to all law enforcement agencies.

SUPERVISED RELEASE FILE

The Supervised Release File (SRF) is an online file, available through California law Enforcement System (CLETS), that provides an index to records of active parolees, probationers, sex and arson registrants, career criminals, and violent offenders.

SERVICES

The SRF serves as an index to:

- California Department of Corrections (CDC) parolees, entered by the CDC.
- California Youth Authority (CYA) parolees, entered by the CYA.
- County probationers, entered by county probation departments.
- Federal probationers, entered by the U.S. Probation Department.
- Sex and arson registrants, updated twice daily from the Department of Justice (DOJ) Violent Crime Information Center.
- Mental Health registrants, entered by the Department of Mental Health.
- Career criminals, as defined in Penal Code section 13853, and entered by law enforcement agencies.
- Violent offenders programmatically created by the DOJ when the subject's other SRF record types become inactive.

A typical response, such as a CDC parole record, may show an individual on parole; physical descriptors; a primary offense; sex registration status; the parole agent's name, phone number and unit; and any advisory information the agent may feel is important for law enforcement to know immediately. Each of the other record types is similarly designed.

After receiving a positive hit, the SRF allows law enforcement to send a Contact Message to the supervising agency. The contact message identifies the agency; date and time the message is sent; officer's name and phone number; enforcement action taken; the vehicle the subject is associated with; and a brief comment field for the particulars about the contact. The contact message is transmitted through CLETS to the supervising agency. All contact messages are connected to the base record, allowing access by law enforcement for tracking purposes.

The SRF also provides supervising agencies with automated notices of arrest resulting from daily comparisons of CII numbers of supervised subjects against California's Automated Criminal History System.

WANTED PERSONS SYSTEM

The Wanted Persons System (WPS) was established in 1971 as the first online statewide, centralized database system for the Department of Justice (DOJ). It is a computerized file of fugitives for whom arrest warrants have been issued. This 24-hour pointer system is used to alert law enforcement agencies of the possibility that the subject, on whom they are making an inquiry, may be a wanted person. It also provides information that may help to ensure the safety of officers who are attempting to apprehend wanted persons.

Authorized agencies throughout the state can utilize remote access terminals to enter warrant information directly into the WPS through the California Law Enforcement Telecommunications System (CLETS). The WPS provides a direct interface with the National Crime Information Center (NCIC), information entered into the WPS can also be programmatically transmitted to NCIC and therefore be available at the national level.

SERVICES

- Provides a central repository of warrant information available to all law enforcement agencies via CLETS.
- Assists law enforcement agencies to access, update, and maintain warrant information in a central repository.
- Provides information to law enforcement agencies on wanted persons that are arrested using a name different from the name on the warrant.
- Notifies law enforcement agencies when a wanted person submits an applicant fingerprint card or a Dealer's Record of Sale for the purchase of firearms.
- Notifies law enforcement agencies when an inquiry is made on an Automated Criminal History System record, which is flagged when the subject is wanted for questioning.
