

Silica Dust Final Rule PSA

English

Do you work in a mine? Breathing in unhealthy amounts of silica dust can lead to severe illnesses like silicosis and black lung.

The Mine Safety and Health Administration has issued a new rule to help protect miners from silica dust hazards. The rule lowers the permissible exposure limit, among other requirements.

To learn more about the rule, contact us with questions, or find health care facilities near you, visit MSHA.GOV.