Wild Fire
野火集

Taiwan during the early 1980s was still under Marshal Law. The forces of taboo and liberation intertwined with each other, forming a wild surge in the historical trajectory. The author engaged in societal reform through the power of words, scrutinizing the absurdity in everyday life. Issues such as environmental pollution, coercion in education, control of thought and curtailment of freedom of speech... The author boldly promotes independent thinking, civil consciousness and courage to act. This collection of essays had an immediate influence so great that it was then called a "Wild Fire Phenomenon," symbolizing one important milestone of the democratic movement of Taiwan.

Fiction
She Walks the Kavulungan Mountains
大武山下

It's nature writing. The author depicts the fauna and flora of her native Taiwan with the precision of an anthropologist and the elegance of a poet. It is also a crime story, where a 40-year-old cold case comes to the foreground. The ghost of a 14-year-old school girl appeared and became bonded with the narrator, who happens to be on the search for the meaning of her existence. This is also a fine literary piece for the young adult. Together with the tender ghost, the narrator explores with a childlike delight the world of nature, history and the immense realm of the meaning of life.

The Letter Never Delivered: Stories of Political Prisoners in Taiwan White Terror

無法送達的遺書：記那些在恐怖年代失落的人

Decades of silence end as letters from political victims emerge from national archives. These 208 writers, executed in the 1950s and 70s, had diverse ideologies but shared a path of resistance and early death. Their 906 pages of hidden documents were unknown to families. They don't seek hero status but aim to shed light on history. Five authors, through research and interviews, reveal the impact of White Terror, complemented by precious images. This expanded edition adds the story of political victim Wen-Pei Wang and his father, analyzed alongside thirty letters.

Return and Representation: Anthology of Fiction About Taiwan's White Terror

讓過去成爲此刻：臺灣白色恐怖小說選 套書

Professor Nai-De Wu, an expert in transitional justice, explores the societal memory process, especially concerning the 228 Incident. This memory journey has two phases: first, the quest for truth before and after martial law, and second, ongoing disputes in interpreting history and its political implications. Literature and art emerge as the third-stage pathway to dismantle political bias, allowing contemporary generations to engage with history and humanity. These remarkable works reveal Taiwan's unique experiences and demonstrate memory's role beyond politics and history. Fiction, like historian Frank's concept, shapes the past, becoming a vital part of memory alongside traditional records. Editors Shu-Wen Hu and Wei-Ge Tong curate authors spanning from 1948 to 2017, illustrating how generations of Taiwanese novelists connect their creativity amid martial law's evolution.

L'abécédaire de la littérature: Y comme Yeux

字母會 Y 眼

The letter Y forms a unique eye within the work, granting us an unfamiliar perspective that literature provides. This literary eye offers unprecedented views. One author delves into the lives of Indonesian-Hakka overseas domestic workers, shedding light on issues related to Hoklo-Hakka identity, gender, and migrant labor. Shu-Wen Hu adopts the perspective of a young girl to observe the pain and solitude inflicted upon her grandmother by the state. Another author's narrative mirrors the intense emotions of young boys and girls, igniting fires within themselves through self-reflection.

Childhood Is Melancholy Rouge

哀艷是童年

Childhood Is Melancholy Rouge consists of twelve short stories, seamlessly capturing Shu-Wen Hu's rich sensibility and revealing the most intimate facets of girlhood. These stories converge on the complexity of desire and the enduring aspects of humanity within change. Hu's characters may seem interconnected, but each harbors love and resentment, far from ordinary. Her writing, though seemingly detached, observes life's most intricate emotions and excels in self-analysis, contrasting desires of the past and present. From the growth of young girls to the complexities of abortion, Childhood Is Melancholy Rouge portrays a distinctive breathing pattern of our era.

The Sun's Blood Is Black

太陽的血是黑的

This novel explores various types of loneliness and the shadows they cast. The author attempts to focus on those who cannot express their feelings, those without a voice, such as political prisoners, individuals with mental illness, survivors of childhood sexual abuse, and those who want or have undergone gender transitions. Similarly, there is another group in this world whose means of expression are hindered, making it difficult for them to speak—the "poor." Loneliness takes many forms, but the deepest ones are often unspoken.

Love Before Daybreak: Taiwanese Literary Landscapes Under Japanese Rule

天亮之前的戀愛

With the intensity of an affair, this novella pays homage to Taiwan's unconventional pioneer writers—from the exploration of the 1920s to the diverse, unrestrained works of the 1940s—all while inviting comparison with modern literature in Taiwan. The writers depicted in this book, no matter how challenging their circumstances, foster their passions through the night, passions which, come morning, must evaporate like dew. Through short stories, Kaori Lai summons fourteen Taiwanese novelists from the Japanese colonial period, depicting both ambitions and oppressive realities, one fragment at a time.

How the Night Chrysanthemums Began to March 菊花如何夜行軍

The essays in this book encourage readers to reflect on the land, the self, and globalization. Yung-Feng Chung shares how he and his orchestral friends sang songs lamenting the floodlights that had turned night into day in sleepy rural villages in the race to profit from the demand for fresh-cut chrysanthemum flowers. In his essays, we too hear song after song about the changes overtaking rural Taiwan.

Controversies in the Context of Modern Enlightenment

近代啟蒙脈絡中的思想論爭

This book covers hermeneutics and structuralism. Three of its chapters deal with the theme of cycles, demonstrating the effectiveness of hermeneutics in interpreting Chinese classics. Elsewhere, structuralism, which originated from the thinking of Claude Lévi-Strauss, is shown to have altered the temporal perspective in the humanities, semiotics, and linguistics.

BOOKS FROM TAIWAN

About Books from Taiwan

Books from Taiwan is an initiative funded by TAICCA (Taiwan Creative Content Agency) to introduce a select list of Taiwan publishing titles, ranging from fiction, non-fiction, children's books, and comic books, to foreign publishers and readers alike. You can find information about authors and books, along with who to contact in order to license translation rights, and the related resources about the Grant for the Publication of Taiwanese Works in Translation (GPT), sponsored by the Ministry of Culture of Taiwan.

About Taiwan Creative Content Agency

With a diverse, open-minded culture, and freedom of speech, Taiwan encourages and inspires creators to develop innovative content. Taiwan also possesses an all-embracing culture, boasting a uniquely diverse history and a multicultural heritage, fostering a liberal, progressive, and stable society. As a global leader in the semiconductor industry, Taiwan has a mature, government-supported technological ecosystem that incubates innovative future content and allows local businesses to better connect with the globe. Balancing distinct cultural traditions and cutting-edge technology, Taiwan is ideal for innovators seeking to unleash their creativity.

Established in 2019 by the Ministry of Culture, the Taiwan Creative Content Agency (TAICCA) supports the development of Taiwan's creative content industry (CCI) such as film and television, future content, publishing, pop music, animation, gaming, performing arts, and visual arts by engaging in production, distribution, overseas market expansion, branding, talent cultivation, industrial research, and more. We promote innovative growth in the creative content economy.
