Pro-Israeli Influence Network

November 2023-March 2024

FAKEREPORTER

Executive Summary

Between November 2023 and February 2024, FakeReporter uncovered hundreds of fake profiles on X that promoted pro-Israeli content online. This network primarily targeted American politicians, especially Black members of the United States Senate and House of Representatives. The accounts within this network demonstrated consistent patterns of behavior typical of foreign influence operations, including accounts created simultaneously, sharing identical names, profile pictures, cover photos, and usernames. These accounts frequently posted and shared identical content.

Among other topics, they concentrated on the current climate at university campuses regarding Jewish students, asserting that these campuses have become dangerous for them. The accounts also highlighted the crimes committed by Hamas on October 7, with a particular focus on sexual assaults, and published content critical of UNRWA. The content included links to three fictitious online platforms: Non-Agenda, The Moral Alliance, and Unfold Magazine. A significant portion of the pro-Israel content on these websites was sourced from international news sites, although some of it was original.

In recent years, FakeReporter has exposed several foreign influence networks originating from various countries, including Iran and Russia. These networks aimed to harm Israel by deepening social polarization and demoralizing the public. However, this is the first instance in which FakeReporter has encountered such an extensive and complex network dedicated to promoting pro-Israel messages abroad. Unlike the influence networks operating within Israel, which target the general public, the current network seems focused on influencing legislators. Its strategy involves creating the perception of widespread American support for Israel and its actions since October 7th.

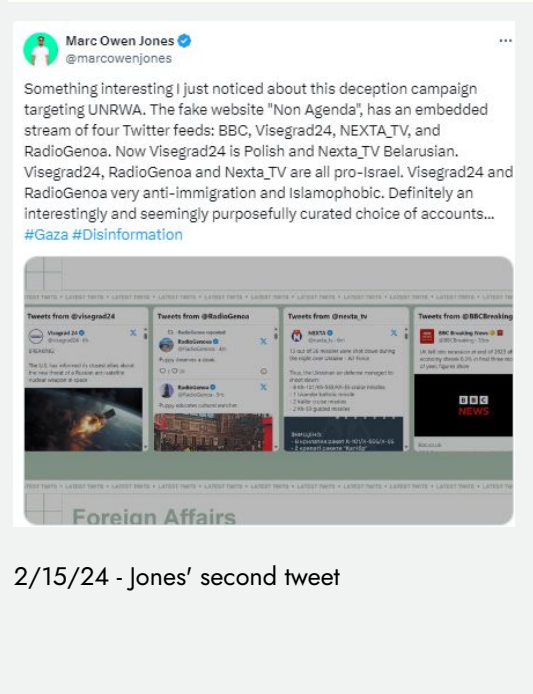

Introduction

In early February 2024, international disinformation researcher Mark Owen Jones unveiled a new foreign influence network primarily active on X, Facebook, Instagram, and Threads. This network utilized hundreds of "sock puppets" to disseminate Israeli propaganda, frequently using fake websites to reinforce their message.

Jones discovered that the network employed stolen profile pictures and that the majority of the accounts were created on the same date. He also exposed the network's publishing of anti-UNRWA messages. Later in the same month, Jones reported a connection between one of the network's accounts and pro-Israel and anti-Muslim accounts on X. The attention drawn by X users to this publication prompted an in-depth investigation into the network.

Methodology

Research Goals

- Characterizing the network.
- Analysis of network's assets and content.
- Identifying the network's target audience.
- Analyzing the network's messaging.

Research Method

- Quantitative analysis of fake accounts.
- Quantitative analysis of digital assets.
- Qualitative analysis of the network's discourse.

Research Period

1/11/2023 - 6/3/2024

Platforms

- X (formerly Twitter).
- Facebook.
- Instagram.
- Websites.

Population

- X - 449 avatars, 56,153 tweets.
- Facebook - 148 avatars, 1,141 posts and comments.
- Main Digital Assets - 3 X accounts, 3 Facebook pages, 2 Instagram accounts and 2 websites. Total number of main accounts and websites - 10.

01

Network Characteristics

Chapter Abstract

1

Hundreds of Facebook and X accounts are promoting pro-Israel content in comments directed at American users, including lawmakers.

2

Identifying network traits: The network exhibits patterns such as the concurrent opening of accounts, recurrent use of specific names, profile photos (including stolen ones), cover photos, and usernames.

3

The network consists of four main groups: a core group that forms the base of the network, a group of profiles that pretend to be average Israeli individuals, a group of fake profiles dedicated solely to sharing and retweeting posts, and a group of profiles tasked with replying to posts.

4

This chapter focuses on analyzing the "core group".

Network characteristics

A tweet responding to an African American member of Congress draws a connection between the Black community in the USA and Jews, while also advocating for the support of Israel.

A tweet that complaining about the lack of coverage of "Palestinian evil" in the media.

Tweets criticizing American universities amid attacks on Jewish students were written in responses to politicians and influencers.

Tweets criticizing UNRWA, amidst reports alleging involvement of certain UNRWA employees in terrorist activities.

Examples of the discourse by the fake profiles in the network

Between November 2023 and February 2024, hundreds of fictitious profiles were identified on Facebook and X. These profiles were primarily promoting pro-Israeli content in the comments and replies to posts from American users, notably focusing on US lawmakers.

The content distributed by these profiles included political messaging against UNRWA, Hamas, and the "axis of evil". Additionally, the content supported Israel, affirmed the historical rights of the Jewish people to the land of Israel, expressed solidarity with the Jewish nation, and promoted Western values.

Network characteristics

Distribution of the different types of fictitious profiles in the pro-Israeli foreign influence network on X.

Network segmentation by activity type on X. N = 449

Among the network's characteristics are accounts that were all opened on the same date, featuring repetitive profile names, profile pictures (including stolen images), cover photos, aliases, and more.

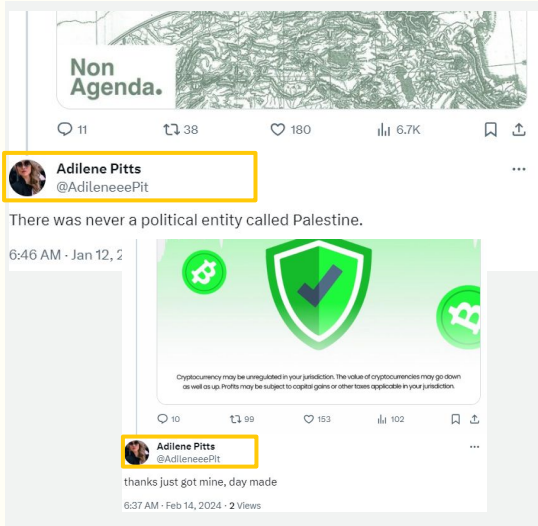

The network's activity on X is divided into four groups:

- Core Group: Forms the base of the network.
- "Israeli" Group: Comprises fictitious profiles impersonating Israelis.
- Retweeters: Consists of fictitious profiles that occasionally retweet pro-Israeli content but primarily focus on promoting commercial content.
- Responders: Includes fictitious profiles that occasionally respond on behalf of the network but mostly concentrate on promoting commercial content.

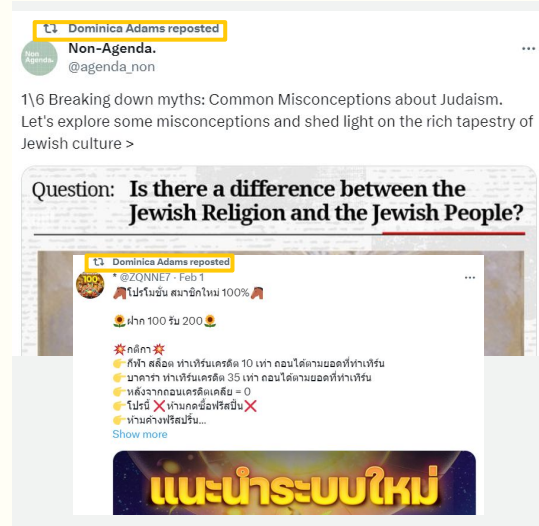

The research is derived from tweets from 449 accounts identified as part of the network.

Network characteristics

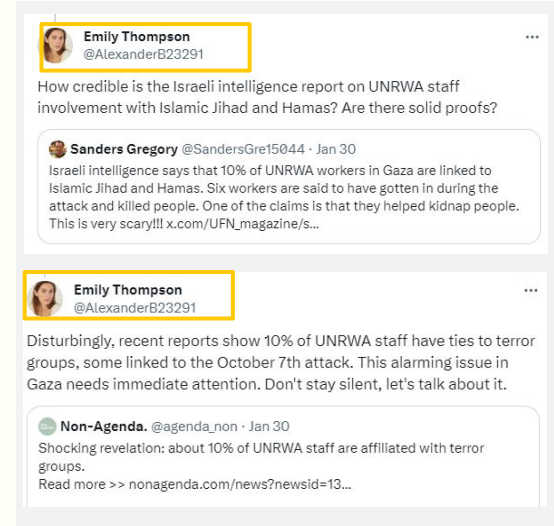

Examples of tweets on X

Responders: The profile responds to Non-agenda with a pro-Israeli message, and at the same time also responds to a commercial crypto account.

Retweeters: The profile retweets a tweet from one of the network's digital assets. But most of the time the profile shares commercial content. For example a Thai gambling game.

Core group: The profile publishes messages against UNRWA and the Palestinians with a link to one of the network's most prominent assets: Non-Agenda

Network characteristics

Opening dates of the fictitious profiles from the core group on X by months, n = 338.

Among the fake profiles in the core group on X, 70% (225) were created in September 2023. Of these, 85% opened on the same day, September 25, 2023.

On that same day, an account for Unfold Magazine, one of the network's main digital assets, was also opened. The network uses this asset to disseminate messages from a seemingly credible source.

All the fake profiles created in January 2024 were established between the 22nd and the 23rd of the month.

This high concentration of accounts being opened on or around the same date aligns with the patterns identified in many foreign influence networks we have previously encountered. It further indicates the existence of an organized network in this instance.

Network characteristics

The network was active on Facebook as well, but obtaining organized information and data about the creation dates of Facebook profiles can be challenging. Despite this challenge, we uncovered that many fake profiles from the core group changed their profile pictures and/or cover photos around the same time.

The simultaneous change of profile and/or cover photos within the same timeframe suggests that these actions were not initiated by authentic users.

Examples of profile pictures and cover photos that were changed on the same date: Profile pictures changed on November 21st, 2023, are shown on the right, while cover photos changed on January 23rd, 2024, are shown on the left.

Distribution of fake profiles with the same name on X.

Example of a name that appeared multiple times with different usernames.

Among the core group of the network on X, 18% of the identified names appeared multiple times under different usernames.

For instance, the name Keisha Thompson was associated with the network on five occasions, each time under a different username, including RodriguezM12319, RogersDavi97452, and RossKennet40381.

The limited pool of names indicates the existence of an organized network, presumably operating with automated tools. The use of automation is a hallmark of foreign influence networks, enabling operators to rapidly create and manage numerous fake profiles efficiently.

Analysis of the profile pictures of the network on X

The category 'Unknown' encompasses fake profiles lacking a human profile picture or instances where the profile picture was unavailable at the time of our analysis.

Network characteristics

The most common fake profiles were those of white men, followed by those of white women.

On the other hand, among the fake profiles that presented themselves as black people, the gender distribution of the profiles is almost equal between men and women.

Distribution of gender and ethnic affiliation of the fake profiles in X according to the profile picture. N = 338.

Chapter Abstract

1

The fake profiles promote and respond with links to three digital assets resembling news sites or organizations: Non-Agenda, The Moral Alliance, and Unfold Magazine. These assets serve to substantiate and validate the numerous assertions made by the network.

2

Accounts on X, Facebook, and Instagram, as well as personal websites, were created for all the digital assets.

3

Each digital asset focuses on slightly different topics but all promote pro-Israeli interests and messages, including content against UNRWA and Hamas.

4

Several characteristics indicate a connection between these properties, including IP addresses, opening dates, activity, and identical content.

Comparison of the three primary digital assets that we identified. The data presented is accurate as of March 6th 2024.

The fake online profiles promote and respond with links to three digital assets, resembling news sites or organizations: Non-Agenda, The Moral Alliance, and Unfold Magazine.

The opening date of Unfold Magazine's X account matches the opening date of most fake profiles in the network. The remaining digital assets were created on earlier dates, yet their first recorded activity began in the period following October 7th. In most cases, the activity of the various accounts started around the same date.

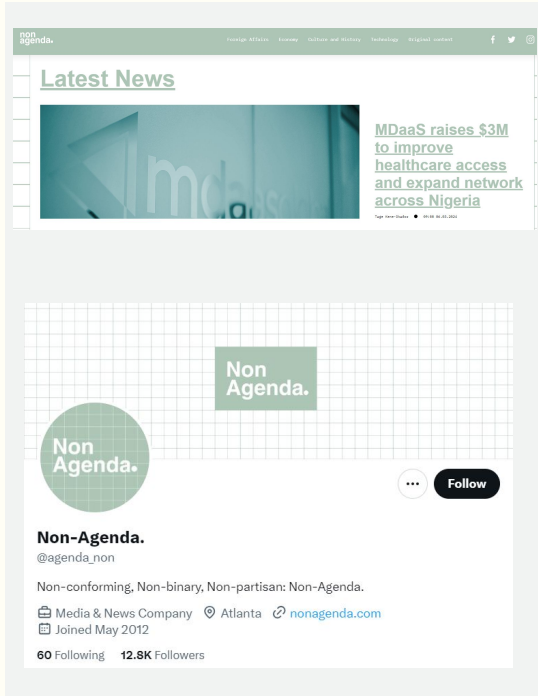

Regarding content, each digital asset concentrates on a slightly different topic, but all promote pro-Israeli interests and messages.

A number of factors indicate a connection between the assets:

- The first tweets from The Moral Alliance and Unfold Magazine were uploaded on consecutive days (January 14 and January 15, respectively).
- The first Instagram posts from Non–Agenda and The Moral Alliance were posted just a few days apart (January 11 and January 14, respectively).
- Checking the history of the IP address for the Non–Agenda and Unfold websites shows that in the past, the websites shared the same address and are actually operated by the same party (screenshot on the left).

Chapter Abstract

1

The fake profiles disseminate repetitive texts about American universities and their hostility toward Jewish students. The accounts also dealt with Hamas's crimes on October 7, with an emphasis on sexual assaults.

2

Other common texts disseminated by the network discussed UNRWA and its workers' connections to October 7, calling for the organization to be shut down.

3

The campaign largely targets American politicians, with a particular focus on African-American Democratic lawmakers.

Repetition of text in fake Facebook profiles' responses.

Thus far, we've uncovered 143 fake profiles from the network on Facebook, which collectively generated 1,144 responses.

Obtaining data from Facebook is challenging due to technical difficulties, and it is estimated that there are significantly more profiles and responses from the same network.

Some repetitive texts from the fake profiles that stood out include "Have you seen this?" and "Why didn't I hear about this?". These texts illustrate how the network attempts to draw attention to the links it publishes.

The fake profiles link to posts from the network's digital assets, such as Non-Agenda, which, among other topics, deal with the involvement of UNRWA employees in the massacre on October 7th.

Network's content

To whom fake profiles are responding

The majority of the responses from the fake profiles were written in response to posts by 45 American politicians, most of whom are African Americans affiliated with the Democratic Party.

The remaining posts that the fake profiles commented on are from pro-Palestinian and pro-Israeli accounts, with the content commented on varying. The fake profiles also commented on posts by international news agencies.

Read my statement on voting yes for the Tax Relief for American Families and Workers Act 📄

I voted yes on the tax framework on behalf of the parents of 16 million children nationwide and 50,000 kids right here in Georgia's Fifth Congressional District who will benefit from the expanded Child Tax Credit. This is a far cry from the 61 million children who benefited when Democrats passed the American Rescue Plan and cut the child poverty rate in half but I refuse to leave any help on the table. This tax framework represents real progress for families, but because Republicans refused to support key provisions, it can only be considered a first step. I won't stop fighting for permanent, fully expanded credits so that no child lives in poverty.”
