Black History

History vault: Reverend. J.H. Jackson and the National Baptist Convention, 1900–1990

This module provides the papers of Reverend Joseph H. Jackson, the longest-serving president of the National Baptist Convention (1953–1982) and pastor of Olivet Baptist Church in Chicago until his death in 1990. It contains records from the civil rights era, highlighting Jackson's emphasis on loyalty to the federal government and the ballot as a tool for achieving civil rights— positions that often contrasted with leaders like Martin Luther King, Jr. The collection spans 1889–2003, focusing on 1950–1990, and includes correspondence, meeting minutes, annual addresses, writings on civil rights, sermons from 1928–1988, and personal records from his student years (1925–1945).

ProQuest Black Studies

New!

Explore the new AI-powered Research Assistant in ProQuest Black Studies. The new AI-powered Research Assistant enhances user experience by enabling more structured Boolean searches with a click and providing tailored recommendations based on the document being viewed.

ProQuest Black Studies brings together ProQuest's award-winning multi-format content into a single destination for research, teaching, and learning. Users can access the most important primary and secondary sources, including esteemed Black Historical Newspapers, archival documents, key government materials, and newly added periodical content on a purpose-built platform built for research, teaching, and learning.

Popular Culture Studies in Video

New!

Through documentaries on films, television, fashion, comics, and gaming, this collection covers a wide spectrum of pop culture topics and spotlights influential figures across the fields of entertainment, art, sports, and cultural spheres. It also explores the evolution of French cinema and Hollywood's enduring imprint on cultural trends from the 20th to the 21st centuries, the transformative power of television and its pivotal role in shaping cultural narratives, and video gaming's impact on modern culture including the role of women in gaming.

Early Modern History

Early European Books, Collection 25: History Chronicles

New!

Within this collection are pivotal texts, primarily in French, spanning the late 15th to the early 18th century. It features seminal classical works, and explores an array of subjects, from political and philosophical discourse to scientific and religious debates. During this era, the accessibility of printed books to all societal levels, not just the privileged, served as a crucial means of spreading knowledge and stimulating debate. These texts critically deconstruct military campaigns, political strategies, and engage in debate on modernizing religion, language, and expanding philosophy.

Sourced from the Bibliothèque Nationale de France, these historic texts provide scholars important insights into religious change, the nature of power, medical advancements, and other challenges faced by European societies. The collection is essential for those studying early modern European history, literature, law, philosophy, and political sciences.

Early European Books, Collection 26: Spanish Drama, Literature & Poetry

Coming in 2025!

This collection features Spanish materials from the period 1450 to 1700, from the British Library in London. It highlights significant literary figures of the time, including renowned authors such as Cristóbal de Castillejo (1544) and Lope de Vega (1599). Through these texts, researchers can explore the rich literary traditions of early modern Spain.

Early European Books, Collection 27: Jewish Cultural Life in the Early Modern Period

Coming in 2025!

This prestigious collection from University College London, the largest collection of historic Judaica in the UK, contains works by Christian scholars of Hebrew texts and Judaism, polemics that are both pro- and anti-Jewish, alongside writings aimed at converting Jews to Christianity. Additionally, this collection includes significant works by Jewish authors, notably those of Manasseh ben Israel, presented in Portuguese with translations into English and Latin, as well as translations of Hebrew texts into various other languages.

Historical Periodicals

Ethnicity & Culture Magazine Archive

New!

This collection contains the backfiles of over 30 magazines from the 20th to the 21st century, each aimed at ethnically specific audiences. It complements traditional scholarly resources by offering a rich primary source archive of largely untapped publications from communities including African American, Latinx, Asian, and indigenous, as well as publications reflecting the European immigration to the U.S. from the 19th century forward. Spanning political titles to publications concerned with fashion, beauty, and identity, the collection reflects diverse voices and gives insight into cultural perspectives, societal shifts, and historical events. Titles are presented in color page-image format with article-level metadata and searchable text.

Le Film Français Archive

Coming in 2025!

This resource makes available for the first time the digitized backfile of the major film industry magazine Le Film Français, from its inception in 1944 to 2025. Published weekly, this title has been a prominent forum for a wide range of stakeholders and commentators to convey news, analysis, and reporting relating to many aspects of the industry. The archive provides researchers with access to a large body of historical data and insights that illuminate 80+ years of cultural, technological, and economic trends in the film industry in France and beyond. This material, presented in page-image format with article-level metadata, is enhanced by the availability of English-language translations for each article.

The Ms. Magazine Archive

Coming in 2025!

This archive provides digital access to the full run of the influential feminist magazine, Ms., from its launch in 1972 to the present. Launched by prominent feminists and activists including Gloria Steinem, Ms. sought to bring coverage of issues relating to feminism and women's rights to a more mainstream readership; it was the first national magazine devoted to these topics. The archive allows researchers easily to access over 50 years of key articles, essays, interviews, reviews, fiction, and poetry documenting the evolution of feminist thought and social change during this period. Among the subjects extensively covered are economic inequality, reproductive rights, violence / harassment, and global feminism. The issues are digitized in colour, page-image format with article-level metadata and searchable text.

Military & Diplomatic History

DNSA 62: U.S. Foreign Policy in the Carter Years, 1977-1981: Highest-Level Memos to the President

This collection of highest-level foreign policy materials from the Jimmy Carter administration features every declassified daily or weekly memo to the president from National Security Advisor Zbigniew Brzezinski and from Secretaries of State Cyrus Vance and Edmund Muskie; as well as every available meeting record of the National Security Council's two subgroups – the Policy Review Committee and the Special Coordination Committee. Many of the records have the president's own handwritten notations. Topics cover the gamut of foreign policy issues during this pivotal period, notably conflicts in the Middle East, the Iran hostage crisis, the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan, SALT talks with Moscow, the opening of diplomatic relations with China, the Nicaraguan revolution, energy, and a growing U.S. emphasis on global human rights.

DNSA 63: U.S.-Russia Relations: From the Fall of the Soviet Union to the Rise of Putin, 1991-2000

New!

The 63rd release of the Digital National Security Archive meticulously assembles a curated assortment of documents that provide a detailed exploration into the formative period of U.S. - Russian relations from the inception of the new Russia in December 1991 to January 2001. This collection captures pivotal moments in diplomatic history during the presidencies of Boris Yeltsin and Bill Clinton, alongside the first notes of discord emerging under Vladimir Putin. Resulting from years of extensive archival research and numerous targeted Freedom of Information Act requests, this unparalleled compilation features a diverse array of memoranda detailing conversations among Yeltsin, Putin, and Clinton, as well as correspondence between top leaders, high-level memos from the Clinton administration, and analyses of Russia's defense capabilities. Core topics encompass meticulous tracking of negotiations on nuclear arms reductions, non-proliferation efforts, and the withdrawal and dismantlement of nuclear weapons in Ukraine, Belarus, and Kazakhstan. Additionally, the collection explores events such as the Russian wars in Chechnya, Russian peacekeeping in the former Yugoslavia, and the contentious issue of NATO expansion to Central and Eastern Europe, providing a nuanced understanding of the complex dynamics shaping U.S. - Russian relations during this critical period.

History Vault: Planning for the Post-World War II World, State Department Records of Harley A. Notter, 1939-1945

New!

History Vault: Planning for the Post-World War II World encompasses Dr. Harley A. Notter's collection of State Department files. These mostly previously confidential materials provide critical insights into the post-WWII world. The materials delve into economic rebuilding of Europe, the reconstruction of Germany and Japan, the establishment of the UN, global trade and geopolitics, and the impact of Soviet influences across strategic areas.

As a significant figure within the State Department, Notter gathered documents that detail the operations of specialized U.S. government committees shaping post-1945 foreign policy. These files serve as the framework on which much of post-1945 U.S. foreign policy was built.

This archive is widely recognized as a cornerstone in understanding postwar planning and best serves researchers and scholars of U.S. diplomatic and military history, international relations, and the modern histories of Europe, Japan, and the Middle East.
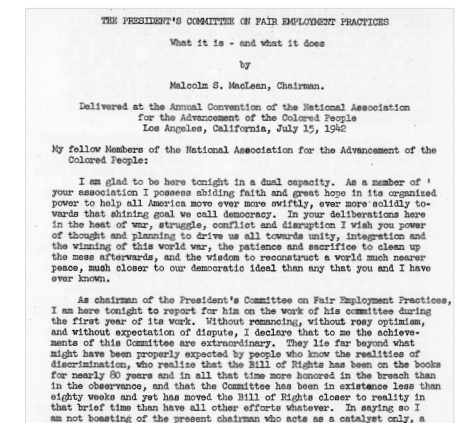

U.S. History

History Vault 71: Labor Priests: Progressive Politics and the Catholic Church, Francis J. Haas Papers, 1904-1953

New!

This archive details Francis Joseph Haas's lifelong dedication to the Catholic Church and workers' welfare. Encompassing Haas's family, education, professional roles, and government engagements, the collection focuses most heavily on his role as a public servant in New Deal agencies and as a labor arbitrator in the 1930s and 1940s. The included materials offer profound insights into the areas of labor relations, governmental policies, and religious studies.

Haas's positions in New Deal agencies, as a labor arbitrator, his scope as chair of Fair Employment Practices Committee and his contributions to academia and religious spheres at The Catholic University of America demonstrate his impact on these fields. These firsthand accounts provide insights into Francis J. Haas's roles in pivotal historical eras, enriching interdisciplinary studies focused on societal, governmental, and religious dynamics.

History Vault: American Jewish Congress Records: Commission on Law and Social Action, Section 1: General and Administrative Files

Coming in 2025!

ProQuest History Vault's digitization of American Jewish Congress (AJC) Records continues in this module with the files of the AJC's Commission on Law and Social Action (CLSA). In 1945, the Executive Committee of the AJC decided to develop a program whose goal was "full equality in a free society for all Americans". To achieve this goal, the AJC's Executive Committee merged the Commission on Law and Legislation and the Commission on Economic Discrimination into a new structure, the Commission on Law and Social Action (CLSA). When Will Maslow joined the AJC to head the CLSA, the struggle against discrimination gained new energy. Maslow created a team of lawyers, including Shad Polier, Alexander Pekelis, Lois Waldman, and Howard Squadron, to pursue legal challenges to discriminatory practices in employment, education and housing. Working together with organizations like the NAACP and the American Civil Liberties Union, CLSA got involved in civil rights and civil liberties issues, including separation of church and state, especially in the field of education. This module represents the first section of records of the CLSA and focuses on CLSA administrative files. Subsequent modules of the CLSA files will cover the specific subject area campaigns pursued by the CLSA.

History Vault: The Catholic Church and Interracial Justice: Records of the National Catholic Conference for Interracial Justice and Project Equality, Inc., 1958-2007

Coming in 2025!

This module from the holdings of Marquette University consists of two collections focused on the Catholic Church's engagement with interracial justice. The records of the National Catholic Conference for Interracial Justice (NCCIJ) document the NCCIJ's efforts to coordinate the activities of Catholic interracial councils. During the 1960s, the NCCIJ served as catalyst for the National Conference on Religion and Race and for Catholic involvement in the March on Washington and demonstrations in Selma, Alabama, and elsewhere in support of federal civil rights legislation. The files of the NCCIJ include minutes of meetings of the board of directors, information on affiliated organizations, records of conventions and workshops, subject files, and files of staff members concerning projects in areas such as education, employment, and health care.

Additionally, records from Project Equality, Inc., founded in 1965 as a service arm of the NCCIJ and incorporated in 1971, document board meeting minutes, and provide publications, and reports focused on promoting equal employment opportunities for African Americans and other minorities.

History Vault: Operation Dixie: The CIO Organizing Committee Papers, 1946-1953

Coming in 2025!

Operation Dixie: The CIO Organizing Committee Papers, 1946-1953, provides detailed documentation on the Congress of Industrial Organization's ambitious campaign to unionize Southern workers in the post-World War II era. The collection includes correspondence among Congress of Industrial Organization (CIO) officials and field representatives, as well as correspondence with local politicians; minutes of state CIO Industrial Union Council and Political Action Committee meetings; minutes of bargaining sessions; and leaflets, pamphlets, flyers, and press releases documenting the CIO's Operation Dixie. One of the highlights of this module is the papers of the CIO's leading "trouble shooter," Lucy Randolph Mason. Known as "Miss Lucy of the CIO," Mason's fight for equal rights and labor rights stands out among the accomplishments of union giants. The records of Operation Dixie complement other collections on labor and civil rights in History Vault and will support students researching political and labor organizing, post-1945 America, Southern history, labor history, and civil rights history.

BBC News Bulletin Scripts Archive: Collection 1 (1937-1955)

Coming in Q4 2024!

BBC News Bulletin Scripts Archive chronicles daily radio bulletin transcripts that provide an overview of unfolding local and global news events. News stories, across six daily broadcasts, show revisions throughout the day to reflect the latest breaking news developments, changes in reporting tone, and emphasis of a story. In doing so, these bulletin transcripts offer researchers valuable context for understanding 20th-century history, culture, and society.

Now digitally available exclusively from ProQuest, these bulletin transcripts contain original annotations and real-time updates, presenting researchers with a new level of detail and accuracy in their study of historical news reporting practices. Scholars can analyze the changes made to the original script, such as what was highlighted, crossed out, or added, to understand how news stories were edited and refined before airing.

BBC News Bulletin Scripts Archive: Collection 2 (1956-1975))

Coming in 2025!

Collection 2 features daily radio bulletin transcripts from the BBC News Bulletin Scripts Archive, chronicling the period 1956-1975. This module covers pivotal events such as the Space Race, African independence movements, the launch of Sputnik, the Bay of Pigs invasion, the assassination of Martin Luther King Jr., Bloody Sunday, the Munich Olympic Games tragedy, and the development of Hawking Radiation Theory. It provides an essential archival record of BBC's coverage of national and global events, offering a unique window into the evolution of scripted radio bulletins and the way in which the public consumed news and current events content. This volume is particularly valuable for researchers and scholars in history, media studies, political science, communications, and sociology.

Anthropology

Ethnographic Video Online, Volume V: Royal Anthropological Institute Film Festival

This collection delivers a selection of impactful documentaries that capture the innovative spirit of the renowned RAI Film Festival. Showcasing work from a broad spectrum of filmmakers—from seasoned professionals to emerging talents—this collection highlights groundbreaking techniques and creative approaches.

Volume five provides diverse viewpoints and insights into contemporary social issues and cultures through ethnographic films submitted from around the globe. Each title, selected by RAI for its scholarly and educational value, is designed to provoke thought, challenge perceptions, and support interdisciplinary studies. Educators can integrate these films into curricula to enrich academic programs with compelling, real-world examples, driving critical analysis and deepening students' understanding of cultural and social issues.

Global Studies

Slavic and Eastern European Studies in Video

New!

Slavic and Eastern European Studies in Video presents titles that delve deep into the historical and cultural dimensions of the region. Videos delve into the pivotal moments that have shaped these countries, exploring the impact of political upheavals, wars, and geopolitical shifts. Alongside this historical exploration, the collection celebrates the vibrant cultural heritage, spotlighting folk traditions, music, art, dance, and religious practices that form the heart of these societies.

Beyond its historical focus, the collection offers a contemporary perspective. Videos within it delve into current socio-political issues, economic challenges, and cultural transformations, offering valuable insights into the region's present state.

World Events and the Media

New!

World Events and the Media, a Global Issues Library Collection, provides insight into the pivotal moments that defined journalism, sourced from exclusive firsthand accounts, memoirs, and archival records revealing journalists' experiences and ethical dilemmas during critical coverage. This curated collection explores crucial historical moments, trials, conflicts, and global movements from a new journalistic angle that unveils the raw emotions, challenges, and transformative shifts within the profession.

Beyond the headlines, it uncovers the untold stories and hidden layers of media coverage, providing a view into unfiltered historical moments. Through archives from journalists' post-event and video interviews and documentaries, this collection provides a unique lens to trace the path of media's influence on public perception and discourse. This distinctive perspective enables researchers to scrutinize how pivotal events haven't just transformed journalism but deeply impacted societal narratives.

Aging in the Modern World

Coming in Q4 2024!

Aging in the Modern World, a Global Issues Library collection, provides an array of multimedia primary and secondary sources— reference materials, policies, personal life history narratives, historical magazines, and archival government documents spanning decades— for undergraduates and graduates investigating the historical and cultural impacts of aging populations.

This collection uniquely focuses on key themes related to aging, encompassing rights advocacy and legal measures combating ageism, urban planning for the aged, societal treatment of the elderly, and the significant political influence of the older demographic. Additionally, it provides comparative perspectives across diverse cultures, offering insights into retirement and lifestyles and education.

With the wide range of themes, the collection not only shows the challenges that have been faced by aging populations globally but also societal advancements in striving to ensure a better quality of life for the aging population.

Political Science & Public Policy

Trends & Policy: U.S. Criminal Justice

New!

This collection merges content from a variety of sources and presents them in a unique interface designed to connect various criminal justice policies of the United States to their trending results. Included in this extensive module are all criminal justice-related public laws and hearings, Legislative branch reports, Executive branch reports and data, press releases, and present-day and historical news articles. The design of the product includes timelines, contextual topic pages for laws, concepts, and events, and rekeyed statistical content that allows researchers to work with the data.

ProQuest Executive Branch Documents (EBD) Great Series and Reports

New and more coming in Q4 2024!

This curated collection of executive branch documents focuses on a complete series and monographs relevant to issues of today and their historical context. Parts are released annually covering the years 1953-present and consisting of approximately 25,000 documents, including complete runs of series and selected monographs from a variety of agencies. This collection builds upon Executive Branch Documents 1-6, which covers 1789-1952. Entitled users can search all executive branch content together and link back to pre-1953 documents from the later documents in a series. Entitled users can also search legislative content related to reports required by Congress with the reports themselves, and link from the executive branch document record to the related Public Law text, EBD Great Series and Reports facilitates teaching and learning about government policies, the implementation of laws, and changes in executive branch organization over time.

- New! Part 1 launched with 6,300 series documents and 30 monographs with the remainder of the content to be added on an ongoing basis in 2024.

- Coming in Q4 2024! Part 2 will launch with approximately 25,000 documents, including complete series and selected monographs.

Trends and Policy: U.S. Civil Rights

Coming in Q4 2024!

The fifth module within the Trends and Policy series of collections, this innovative resource seamlessly merges content from diverse sources, offering a unique interface that connects various U.S. policies to their trending outcomes. It draws upon ProQuest's extensive archive of legislative and executive branch materials. Catering specifically to researchers and students exploring civil rights policies, this database eliminates the need to navigate multiple disjointed resources. This collection is perfect for undergraduates and law students delving into African American, Asian American, LGBTQ, and women's studies, alongside disciplines such as U.S. history, political science, and sociology. The platform goes beyond conventional offerings by providing comprehensive insights into the executive, legislative, and judicial aspects of civil rights. policies, their real-world impact, and implications for civil liberties. Additional features such as topic pages, curated timelines, and downloadable statistical tables make this an invaluable asset for teaching and learning U.S. civil rights.

Our unified mobile and web app allows educators to easily offer a personalized digital companion for students throughout their academic journey: giving students seamless access to institutional services and resources, helping them navigate their day on campus, and empowering better decision-making about how they manage their time.

What's new with campusM:

- New Task Board feature released.

- User signup and social media credentials is now available for Facebook, Google and LI.

Clarivate™ & Ex Libris™ Integrations

Our teams have been working on exciting new integrations between our products to enhance value for libraries and their patrons. We have integrated holdings data from Alma into InCites™ to enhance collection management reporting and improve purchasing decisions. EndNote customers with Alma can take advantage of an integration to help patrons get to PDFs easier. In addition, we enriched the Central Discovery Index (CDI) with more accurate metadata and new collections from Web of Science to deliver a better search experience in both Primo and Summon.

Community engagement

Vega Program

Developed by and for librarians, Vega Program gives library staff the tools they need to successfully orchestrate and advertise their programs, whether in person or online, standalone or recurring. This tool's intuitive features empower staff to coordinate their full breadth of events. From the administrative dashboard, staff can easily create, edit, or clone events, while using advanced settings for transaction fees (via Stripe), room reservation approvals, and waitlist management. Room reservations can be set up for spaces of any size from a study carrel to an auditorium, from special equipment to time with library staff. In addition, built-in marketing tools provide staff with one-click event fliers and QR codes plus automated printable brochures.

Vega Promote Web

This website building tool is easy to use (regardless of your level of web experience), flexible enough to integrate patron account management and other library tools, and worry-free because we take care of the hosting and security for you. Vega Promote Web can easily scale to help single-site libraries, consortia, or universities modernize their digital presence. Built-in features include library-specific templates, drag-and-drop design, Artificial Intelligence (AI) assistance for copy writing, and a centralized content management system.

In addition, we've built ILS integrations for patron account self-service. Lastly, we prioritize user experience through an accessibility checker and Search Engine Optimization (SEO) support, and enterprise-grade performance, security and reliability.

Vega Promote

Stay connected with students and community members through targeted and relevant emails to your different user groups. Vega Promote's cloud-based platform allows libraries to communicate what they want, when they want, to whom they want.

Key features include a drag-and-drop email design tool and custom design library where you can save email templates and design blocks. Built-in tools help you protect your sender reputation with automated unsubscribe and bounceback workflows, and a default footer to help meet regulation. You can view engagement data for email opens and clicks to measure your campaigns

Innovative library software

Polaris ILS

This consistently popular, comprehensive ILS and web-based interface is designed specifically for the unique needs of public libraries of all types — single site, multi-branch, and consortia. With its responsive web interface, Polaris empowers staff to connect with patrons and complete tasks wherever it is most convenient – in the stacks, at community events, or even working from home. Libraries that adopt Polaris quickly see staff productivity increase, patron satisfaction soar, and experience returns on their technology investment.

Our libraries report that after implementing the Polaris ILS, staff are able to spend less time managing the catalog and acquisitions, less time creating reports, and more time on high-value activities like serving patrons.

Vega Discover

Help patrons search, find, and browse resources quickly and easily. Vega Discover provides the modern online experience patrons have come to expect, with an intuitive interface and enrichment content to create an immersive library experience.

Features include a customizable catalog homepage, Discover showcases where libraries can display any arrangement of resources, and enhanced discovery powered by Syndetics Unbound. When patrons search, they see all formats and editions of the same title rolled into one result. eContent is fully integrated and they can start reading an ebook straight from the catalog. Finally, we prioritize accessibility with regular VPATs to ensure adherence to ADA, Section 508, and WCAG 2.1 standards.

Innovative Mobile

Let your patrons search your catalog, place holds, renew and check out materials, register for events and more right from their phone.

From managing their patron and family accounts to optional self-checkout or scheduling curbside pickup, the Innovative Mobile app empowers patrons while saving time for your staff.

We call it Innovative Mobile, but your patrons will see it as your library app – customized with your library's name, logo, colors, and selected layout. And it integrates with 13 different integrated library systems (ILS). Put the library in your patrons' hands with Innovative Mobile.

ProQuest Historical Newspapers

Historical Newspapers: U.S. Collection

Historical Newspapers: U.S. Collection explores America's events and stories—past and present—through a collection of over 130 exclusive local newspaper titles across 35 states and growing. Titles span from the first historical issue to the most recent, with the ability to experience each issue as it was originally printed, page by page, in crisp detail for an immersive research experience.

News happens everywhere. This collection delivers first-hand accounts of news where and when it happened on the ground, with state, local and community news that was not covered in national and international dailies. Additionally, unique local perspectives and interpretations of national and global events provide an alternate lens through which to study key events and social issues of the past and present.

Historical Newspapers: ABC (Spain) (1903–2010)

First published in Madrid in 1903, ABC is the oldest newspaper still operating in Madrid, the second largest newspaper in Spain, and one of three newspapers of record in Spain. It has always been considered the most well written among Spanish newspapers with many great writers and intellectuals contributing over the years. The newspaper uses extensive photography and was the first European newspaper to use photo engraving. ABC has a dedicated foreign bureau and offers considerable editorial space to foreign news, and coverage of the arts and Spanish culture.

Historical Newspapers: St. Louis American (1949-2010)

New!

The St. Louis American stands as a steadfast witness to the community, serving and reporting on the African American experience since its beginning in March 1928. This enduring weekly founded by Nathan B. Young, the first Black appointed municipal judge in St. Louis, and several prominent African American businessmen, has played a pivotal role in chronicling and championing African Americans in St. Louis. From its modest beginnings as an eight-page tabloid with a circulation of just over 2,000, the St. Louis American has evolved into the single largest weekly newspaper in Missouri. The newspaper has been a crucial voice in highlighting St. Louis's historical significance for African Americans, from its key location on the Underground Railroad in the early to mid-19th century, to the establishment of a vibrant Black community, and serving as an active hub for civil rights in the 20th century. The St. Louis American remains a trusted source of news tailored to the Black community reporting not only on social issues, but also on national and regional news, religion, sports, and entertainment.

Historical Newspapers: The Hamilton Spectator (Canada) (1846-2010)

New!

he Hamilton Spectator is a Canadian newspaper in the port city of Hamilton in the province of Ontario. Founded by Robert Smiley in 1846, the newspaper has been a cornerstone of Hamilton's history as an important steel and commerce port for over 175 years. Initially established as The Hamilton Spectator and Journal of Commerce, Smiley's newspaper faced a competitive market with four existing papers in Hamilton. Despite the challenges, the paper quickly gained traction. Through the lens of The Spectator, Hamiltonians witnessed pivotal moments including the Great Depression and both World Wars. The newspaper became a vital source for families during wartime, delivering news from overseas and reporting on the impact of conflicts like the Dieppe Raid in 1942. The Spectator also delved into societal issues, tackling subjects such as poverty and environmental concerns like sewage dumping in the harbor. Some notable personalities in The Spectator's history include one of the first female journalists at the paper Ella Reynolds, who wrote under the pen name Jennie Wren, and city editor Edward Morrison, known for his vitriolic pen and illustrations. The newspaper evolved with technological leaps, utilizing the telegraph to access global information. From the poignant tales of families anxiously awaiting news from overseas during wartime to the incisive reporting on societal issues, The Hamilton Spectator has been a chronicler of the city's triumphs, losses, and transformations.

Historical Newspapers: Waterloo Region Record (Canada) (1893-2010)

New!

The Waterloo Region Record is the daily newspaper of Southern Ontario reporting on stories of importance to the communities of Kitchener, Waterloo, and Cambridge. The newspaper started as the Daily News of Berlin founded by Peter Moyer, a former methodist preacher, on February 9, 1878. Berlin, a railroad hub, was the city of Kitchener's name until 1916. This publication was the area's first daily paper and had many name changes and ownership shifts in its history becoming the Kitchener-Waterloo Record in 1947 then The Record in 2004 and its present name of Waterloo Region Record in 2008. Throughout its history, The Record has been a reliable source of news, covering local, national, and international events. The Waterloo Region Record has witnessed and reported on the region's participation in both World Wars, the Great Depression, social issues such as civil rights and environmental concerns, as well as the growth and development of the Waterloo Region, from its agricultural roots to becoming a hub for technology and innovation.

Historical Newspapers: The Boston Globe (extension years 1994-2007*)

New!

Founded in 1872, Boston, Massachusetts' oldest and largest daily newspaper, boasts a remarkable 27 Pulitzer Prizes. Renowned for its thorough coverage of local, national, and international news, The Globe plays a pivotal role in shaping New England's discourse. ProQuest Historical Newspapers now offers extension years from 1994 to 2007, supplementing the existing archive from 1872 to 1993. This expanded content captures pivotal moments, including the "Spotlight" team's groundbreaking investigation into Catholic Church sexual abuse, inspiring reforms and earning the Globe a Pulitzer, with the story later adapted into a 2015 movie. The additional years also chronicle significant events such as the Boston Red Sox breaking the "Curse of the Bambino" by winning the World Series in 2004 and 2007, Mitt Romney's Governorship (2003-2007), and Boston's thriving biotechnology boom in the early 2000s.

When two documents are co-cited, it means that they are cited together by other documents. The more co-citations two documents receive, the higher their co-citation strength, indicating that they are semantically related. By analyzing which documents are frequently cited together, we can identify key literature and understand the evolution of scientific thought.
