#DigitalCooperation

"We need new thinking and innovative ideas to harness the benefits and manage the risks of the digital age." - UN Secretary-General Antonio Guterres

What does digital cooperation mean?

working together to address the societal, ethical, legal, and economic impacts of digital technologies
so that we can maximize benefits to society and minimize harms.

Leaving no one behind in the Digital age

1A: The Panel recommends that by 2030, every adult should have affordable access to digital networks and digitally-enabled financial and health services, guarding against abuse by building on existing practices and encouraging informed public discourse.

1B: The Panel recommends that a broad, multi-stakeholder alliance create a platform for sharing "digital public goods", engaging talent and pooling data sets in areas related to attaining the SDGs.

1C: We call on the private sector, civil society, national governments, policy banks and the UN to adopt specific policies to support full digital inclusion for women, and for international organizations such as the World Bank and the United Nations to focus on women and inclusive technology in their research.

1D: A set of metrics for digital inclusiveness should be agreed, measured worldwide and detailed in the annual reports of institutions such as the World Bank, UNCTAD, ITU and UNDP.
