

Seller Policy

As a Seller, you are central to providing each of your Buyers with a safe and trustworthy experience on Poshmark. This policy is designed to outline a Seller's rights and responsibilities and is a part of Poshmark's Terms of Service.

Sellers are responsible for reviewing and abiding by these rules as well as any applicable local laws. Violating this policy may result in restrictions to your account, up to and including termination, and may be made at the sole discretion of Poshmark.

Seller Fee Policy

All fees are simple and straightforward.

It's always free to list an item for sale on Poshmark.

After your item sells, we deduct a small fee from the final order price. Please refer to the Canada Fee Policy for more information.

What Can Be Sold On Poshmark

Poshmark’s marketplace welcomes the sale of most types of new and pre-owned fashion, as well as select home goods, pet items, and electronics with certain restrictions within these categories. Please note that not all categories or types of items may be available in your location.

For the safety of our Users, items outside of our supported categories and otherwise prohibited or unlawful items may not be offered for sale on Poshmark. Please review the Prohibited Items Policy to be sure you know what items can’t be listed or sold.

Listing Descriptions and Pricing

Sellers are responsible for describing items truthfully, accurately, and completely. This includes creating informative listing descriptions that include your original photos of the items and details such as the condition and any flaws or unique features and, when using automated listing features such as Smart List AI, reviewing the generated listing descriptions and details for accuracy and completeness. The item for sale should be clearly represented in the main photo. Avoid any photo editing techniques that may make it difficult for Buyers to accurately assess the condition of the item, such as collages or heavy special effects.

Sellers must have possession of, and ship, the actual item described in the listing. Sellers may not list a promise for a future item, or ship a “placeholder” note or item indicating the actual listed item will arrive at a future date.

Sellers must promptly answer questions and requests for additional information. Please note that images as well as descriptions provided in comments and during Posh Shows (where applicable) may be reviewed and considered by Poshmark staff in the event of a dispute.

Sellers may price items as desired, but price gouging is strictly prohibited. Poshmark encourages Sellers to view similar items, whenever possible, to determine a realistic listing price likely to result in a sale. Once a Buyer accepts a listed price, a binding transaction exists and Sellers are required to provide the item(s) to a Buyer at that price. Sellers must also fulfill any and all additional requirements as detailed in this Seller Policy and our Terms. Once you accept a Buyer's offer, a binding transaction also exists.

Please review the requirements and details regarding Offers and Bundles.

Order Fulfillment

Once a Buyer accepts your offer, you accept a Buyer's offer, or an auction is successfully completed, you must fulfill the sale. Sellers must use Poshmark's provided shipping labels when fulfilling orders.
