STARS OF THE FUTURE

JANUARY 11-15 2024

January 11, 2024

On behalf of the Naismith Basketball Hall of Fame and Springfield College, we welcome you, whether you are here in person or watching from around the country, to the prestigious 2024 Spalding Hoophall Classic at the Springfield College Blake Arena being held January 11-15, 2024. This year we celebrate the 22nd Hoophall Classic that over time has featured many of today's elite NBA and WNBA players.

The 22nd annual Hoophall Classic is a collection of the top players, teams and coaches that makes up a diverse field of boys and girls teams that represent local, regional and national teams. This 32 game event over five days is "the" spot for high school basketball over Martin Luther Weekend as so many make the annual trip to the Birthplace of Basketball with thousands of fans in attendance.

This year, 54 teams from across the country will participate in what is widely known as the top high school basketball event in the United States. National and international web, media, and ESPN television audiences will be able to follow along with the excitement in real time.

In 1891, James Naismith invented the game of "basket ball" while he was a graduate student and instructor, thus earning Springfield College the Birthplace of Basketball moniker. Innovation and scholarship in the fields of wellness and athletics continue to be hallmarks of a Springfield College education.

Located in the Pioneer Valley on the shores of the picturesque Connecticut River, the Naismith Memorial Basketball Hall of Fame is a fitting shrine to the game Dr. Naismith invented and a showcase for almost 300 inductees with more than 40,000 square feet of basketball history.

Throughout the decades, the Basketball Hall of Fame and Springfield College have built a dynamic partnership, each bringing with them deep and historical connections to the game of basketball. This tournament is just one of the tangible results of this relationship.

We thank the City of Springfield, our host, as the sports world's attention is turned to the Hoophall Classic at this most fitting site - where the game was invented in this very city and this very college - 130 years ago.

Sincerely,

COOPER FLAGG

BY REESE MERRITT @reesemerritt_

Actor and racing driver Patrick Dempsey and actress Anna Kendrick, two notable celebrities, happen to share a birthplace. They are from the northeasternmost state in the U.S. – the state of Maine. Even author Stephen King, known for his novels in horror and supernatural fiction, is from Maine.

These Mainers have made their impacts within their respective communities. But upsurging to leave a dominant footprint in his respective community is Montverde Academy forward Cooper Flagg, a Newport, Maine native. Flagg is the top prospect in high school basketball and is the favorite to be the No. 1 overall selection in the 2025 NBA Draft.

And without fail, Stephen King's award-winning novels give readers vivid nightmares, filled with blood orange-haired clowns and the lawnmower man, yet Flagg's style of play should scarify fear in the minds of his opponents for years to come.

“Cooper Flagg, when he's out there, he's the one that shows just a know-how and a confidence and like a basketball IQ, just trying to make the right play at all times,” Golden State Warriors point guard Steph Curry said on a Slam Magazine YouTube video. “He can obviously show his athleticism and his overall skill set, but he's one that I've seen that's like never really in a hurry out there. And for the high school level, that's hard to find cause they're so athletic, so fast, they rely on that. But, he almost plays like an NBA style.”

But before Flagg was known by Curry, and more recently, before Flagg had committed to Duke University, the 6-foot-9 forward had to compete against older competition at an early age.

Flagg's mother, Kelly, who played Division I basketball at the University of Maine in 1995-1999, realized Cooper needed a challenge at the elementary level. So, Kelly enrolled Flagg in a fourth grade recreational basketball league as a second grader, a full two grades above

Flagg's current grade level, according to Slam Magazine.

Flagg said in his commitment video, published by Slam Magazine, "Basketball has always been ingrained in me thanks to my mom and dad. Growing up in Maine, I had to work twice as hard to gain the respect and recognition of the basketball world."

Ralph, Flagg's father, was also a collegiate athlete, playing basketball for Eastern Maine Community College. Coincidentally, both of Flagg's parents played at Nokomis Regional High School, where he would follow in their footsteps. Right next to his twin brother, Ace, and right behind his older brother, Hunter.

In Flagg's freshman year, glory struck for the Nokomis Warriors. Flagg and his two brothers helped lead the Warriors to a 21-1 season, capturing the school's first boys basketball title in the 2021-2022 season. And again, as a high school freshman, Flagg was named Maine Gatorade Player of the Year.

Around this time, the buzz began around Flagg's name. Even Flagg's head coach at Nokomis, Earl Anderson, noticed this, saying he could not "tell you how many kids would line up for autographs," according to the Bangor Daily News.

Then came a decision for the Flagg family in a cinematic fashion. Flagg could take his competitive shot-blocking, and instinctive two-way play-making abilities 1,500 miles away from his home, away from his mother and father to Montverde Academy, known for regularly producing a surfeit of NBA players. Or, he could continue his high school career at Nokomis.

It was the historic program at Montverde Academy that was appealing to Flagg, leading Ace and himself to make the move to Montverde, Fla. for their sophomore year. From that point on, a list of achievements broke through like a landslide.

Flagg earned MVP honors at the National Basketball Players Association Top 100 Camp in late June, he represented the USA Basketball at the FIBA U17 World Cup in 2022 earning a gold medal and setting a single-game record for rebounds with 17 against Spain in the final for the men's U17 team, was named USA Basketball's Male Athlete of the Year in December of 2022, and was the MVP of the 2023 Spalding HoopHall Classic.

See, it's a landslide of success.

"It is rare, but to me his success is not an accident," Flagg's personal trainer Matt MacKenzie recently said to the Bangor Daily News. "He has a blue-collar work ethic and was taught from a young age that success is earned, not given. He genuinely loves the game, loves to be coached and absolutely lives to compete. It's scary how special he could be."

Now committed to Duke, Flagg will truly be a bit closer to Newport, but will represent the state, swiftly setting eyes as a versatile player in the NBA.

In a Slam Magazine YouTube video, Flagg said, "Something that I'm taking a lot of pride in is just proving to everybody from Maine and everybody [from] the rest of the country and the world that kids from Maine can make it and they can be good enough if they really put their mind to it."

MARIA AND DYLAN HARPER

BY KAITLYN KUPIEC @kaitlynkupiec

Maria Harper is not just a familiar face in the bleachers; she's a determined mother who takes her place courtside as the assistant coach of Don Bosco Preparatory High School basketball team. She is the driving force behind her son Dylan Harper's journey on and off the court.

Dylan, 17, a 6-foot-5 point guard for Don Bosco, scored a game-high 38 points against Christopher Columbus High School on Dec. 22 in the City of Palms Classic. He is ranked as the top point guard in the class of 2024 by ESPN, thanks in large part to his ability to seal off defenders and his consistent approach when the ball is in his hands.

Growing up, Dylan was always around basketball. Maria was a Division I basketball player at the University of New Orleans and has nearly three decades of coaching experience. His father, Ron Harper Sr., is a five-time NBA champion - three with the Chicago Bulls and two with the Los Angeles Lakers – who played 16 years in the NBA, and his older brother, Ron Harper Jr., currently plays for the Raptors 905 team in the NBA G League.

“When we’re not in the gym, at practice, at games, or on the road traveling, we’re home, and the only thing that’s on our television is live sports,” Maria said. “We talk about basketball a lot.”

Maria Pizarro immigrated to the United States from the Philippines at the age of 7 and grew up in the town of Paterson, N.J. She began playing basketball as an after-school activity in fifth grade. Once Maria got to high school, she was all in, and she eventually earned a scholarship to New Orleans.

After her playing days ended, Maria was drawn to coaching. “Always being passionate about the sports I played, I wanted to continue being involved in the game (specifically basketball) as an adult,” Maria said. “Coaching was the natural progression for me to stay connected to the game I love.”

Maria’s first coaching job was in Chicago, as an assistant for a high school team. She took her first head coaching position at DePaul Catholic High School, where she oversaw the girls varsity team. After taking some time off to enjoy watching her older son play in high school, she joined Kevin Diverio and the Don Bosco staff, where she has been for five years.

“Knowing that she wants the best future for not just me but for my team is the biggest part for me,” Dylan said. “Just knowing that she’s there for all 15 of us means a lot.”

The basketball legacy established by his family has set expectations for Dylan to not only replicate their success, but also to carve out his own distinctive mark in the sport.

After winning two state titles with Don Bosco, Ron Jr. had a successful career at Rutgers before signing a two-way contract with the Raptors organization.

For Dylan, the court is a place where he seeks to transform the pressure into a driving force for his own basketball journey, determined to honor the legacy while forging a path uniquely his own.

“I take something away from each game, but really just doing what I have to do to win helps me stand out the most,” Dylan said.

In early December, Dylan committed to Rutgers and became the highest-ranked commit in program history. Deciding to stay in his home state and follow in his brother’s footsteps invites comparison and brings pressure, but falling short of the hype is not a concern for Dylan.

“It’s definitely a blessing and an honor, because it means all the hard work is paying off,” Dylan told The Athletic in July. “But it doesn’t stop now. The main goal is still just getting better every day. And winning.”

KIYAN ANTHONY

BY LUKE WHITEHOUSE

When your father is an NBA star, it's hard growing up as a basketball player.

The immense pressure that you have, the expectations, it can affect a player both mentally and physically.

In recent memory, we've seen Bronny James, son of 4x NBA MVP LeBron James, carve his own path, navigating through high school and now college basketball.

And Kiyan Anthony is no different.

The son of 10x All-star and future Hall of Famer Carmelo Anthony and TV personality La La Anthony, his life has been the spotlight from a young age. From attending Red Carpet events, to sitting courtside at his fathers games, Kiyan garnered media attention.

As Kiyan transitioned into his teenage years, the pressures of being in the limelight amplified. There were expectations — not only because of his lineage but also due to the curiosity of the public eye.

Some anticipated he would follow in his father's footsteps and become a basketball prodigy, while others wondered if he might venture into entertainment like his mother.

But as the tides settled, it became clear what path Kiyan would choose: Basketball.

All Kiyan has done is display remarkable maturity, embracing the expectations that come with his last name, while staying true to himself.

After spending his first two high school years at Christ The King, Kiyan transferred to Long Island Lutheran for his junior year. A successful two years at CTK and success in the AAU circuit over the summer helped the 6-foot-5 four-star shooting guard emerge as one of the best players in the state of New York. When Rivals.com updated its top 150 of the junior cycle, they moved Kiyan up six spots to No. 46.

Recently, Anthony has accumulated 13 total Division I offers including Tennessee, Pittsburgh, Indiana, Florida State, and his fathers alma mater, Syracuse.

Although Kiyan has built in popularity, the 16-year-old has amassed over 750 thousand followers on Instagram, and a lot has to do with another hobby of his: fashion.

Mixed in with basketball highlights are Kiyan's unique outfits that showcase a glimpse into his personality.

This has also led to Kiyan's partnership with the leading premium underwear brand, PSD. According to a Forbes article, Kiyan said that "I was so excited when PSD approached me, it's a brand that I have worn and really like so it was very cool for me.

My focus while working with the PSD team was to design prints that are reflective of me and the art that I am into right now."

Off the court Kiyan has been able to showcase his personality with the biggest brands, and on the basketball court, he'll be able to showcase his talents on the biggest stage. Kiyan and his team will travel to Springfield, MA to play in the annual Naismith Memorial Basketball Hall of Fame Spalding Hoophall Classic. The event has seen the likes of NBA all-stars Jayson Tatum, Jaylen Brown, Anthony Davis and NBA MVP Kevin Durant - all who have made their mark at Hoophall and Kiyan will have that same opportunity.

But even with the expectations that come with his last name, Kiyan continues to blaze his own path. Part of that has been just him being himself, but also his parents' support.

In a recent interview with Stephen A. Smith, LaLa, Kiyans mother said:

"Melo and I don't put any pressure on him; we will let him know that we support him."

As he continues to grow and carve his own place in the world, Kiyan has become an example of how to gracefully handle the pressures of fame, all while staying true to oneself and embracing the opportunities that come with it.

KATERYNA KOVAL

BY NICK PANTAGES

Leaving your family and moving 4,800 miles away is one of the hardest things a 15-year-old can do. But since she left her home in Kyiv, Ukraine, three years ago, Kateryna Koval has fit in perfectly at Long Island Lutheran High School in Brookville., N.Y., blossoming into the No. 1 high school post player in the country.

Playing hoops was not always this easy for Koval, a 6-foot-4 center got a relatively late start to her basketball career.

“To be honest, I didn’t like basketball,” Koval said. “My dad kind of made me try [to play]. I used to dance when I was a kid, and I loved that.”

Once she began to take the game seriously around the age of 12, Koval was forced to choose between ballet and basketball. As soon as Koval realized how talented she really was, coming to America and pursuing a potential collegiate or professional career was the best decision – due to the higher level of competition and increased recruiting opportunities.

Fortunately enough, LuHi was the perfect landing spot.

After making a very good initial connection and relationship with head coach Christina Raiti, who saw Koval’s highlights and convinced her to attend without even visiting the school. That faith in the coaching staff has paid dividends.

“I feel like from going to like 15 to now being almost 18 years old are very important years in your life,” said Koval, who now goes by Kate. “Being around all the coaches for three years really taught me a lot of things, and the mentality that we have and our life views are very similar.”

In her junior campaign, Koval put up 15.1 points, 11.7 rebounds and 3.4 blocks per game en route to winning a state title and being named the Gatorade New York Girls Basketball Player of the Year, earning the No. 5 ranking in the ESPNW top 100 rankings. She's ranked as Koval's stellar play earned her a long list of college offers, including from perennial powers Notre Dame and Stanford, and defending champion LSU. Ultimately, Koval chose the Fighting Irish and coach Niele Ivey.

Notre Dame's combination of academic and athletic success, along with an electric in-game atmosphere, drew her to the school.

"I like the educational part," Koval said. "It's obviously a great basketball program. I have a chance to win the national championship every year - and it felt like home."

However, all the success on the court has not solved all of Koval's worries off the court. Her family is still thousands of miles away, and the adjustment to a new culture and new language remains a challenge.

"I haven't [ever] been away from my family for this long," Koval said. "But I call them every single day."

On the court, basketball has helped her adjust, and also to find her voice.

"I'm being a lot more vocal [as a leader] on the court this year," she said. "I've been working very hard on that, especially with the language barrier."

Koval's connection to her birth country remains strong, as Koval still represents Ukraine on the international stage. She has played for the national team for almost six years - at the FIBA U16 Women's European Challengers in 2021, she averaged 26 points and 14.2 rebounds per game - and sees that commitment as something that is greater than basketball. It is her chance to go home and see her family and the friends that she grew up with, along with representing her home country on a worldwide scale. Suiing up in the Ukrainian blue and yellow is a source of pride for Koval.

"I always say that people don't understand that it's a different feeling to play for your country, when you have that flag on your chest and your name on your back," Koval said.

The Russia-Ukraine war has added an additional worry to Koval's life. The difficulty of being so far from her family while her country is going through such a turbulent time is something that she carries with her every day. It is also what inspires her to keep going, making sure to better herself each and every day, on and off the court.

"It's definitely hard, especially the first year [the war] started," Koval said. "It was hard, and to this day it is always on my mind because you never know what is going to happen, especially with me knowing that my family - , my grandma, my father - are still there."

"It also gave me another motivation," she continued. "It gave me another reason why I play basketball and how blessed I am to be able to go to the gym and go to school every day. I think about it every single day."
