Joseph M. Gillette Welcome Center

The Gillette Welcome Center opened in 2007 and is named for Joseph M. Gillette, Sr., father of Joseph M. Gillette, Jr., a Marshall alumnus and generous and active supporter of Marshall. Formerly the Alpha Chi Omega sorority house, the Gillette Welcome Center is now home of the Office of Admissions, where visitors begin their campus tours and connect with the Admissions staff—your guide to becoming #oneoftheherd.

Catholic Newman Center

This building was completed in 1981 and is part of the national organization of Newman Centers. This center offers a variety of service opportunities and faith sharing, having Mass every Sunday at 7 p.m.

Brad D. Smith Foundation Hall, home of the Erickson Alumni Center

The Brad D. Smith Foundation Hall is home of the Erickson Alumni Center as well as the Marshall University Foundation, Inc. Opened in 2010, the Foundation Hall was renamed on October 30, 2015, to honor Marshall alumnus Brad D. Smith, president and former CEO of Intuit.

Joan C. Edwards Performing Arts Center

Completed in 1992 and named to honor Joan C. Edwards, a Huntington philanthropist and patron of the arts. Inside, there is a 530-seat playhouse, an experimental “black box” theater, and multiple spaces for rehearsals, classes, and production activity. The Jomie Jazz Center was completed in 2000 and is a home for our Jazz Studies program.

The Marshall Artists Series box office is also housed in the Performing Arts Center and brings a wide-range of national and international touring artists to Huntington. Students receive tickets to all theater productions and the Artists Series as part of their tuition and fees.

Corbly Hall

Corbly Hall is named for Lawrence J. Corbly who served as “principal” of Marshall College from 1896 to 1907 and as its first president from 1907 to 1915. The building was dedicated in November 1980. Inside this building is our internationally accredited Lewis College of Business, the English Department, and our four largest lecture halls.

John Marshall Statue

This statue was created by sculptor William Behrends of Tryon, North Carolina, and was unveiled on October 23, 1998. The base is engraved with the words “Revolutionary Soldier. Definer of the Constitution. Devoted husband and father.” John Marshall served in the Revolutionary War, pioneered the WV territory, and served as the fourth chief justice of the U.S. Supreme Court. His tenure as Chief Justice remains the longest in Supreme Court history.

Drinko Library

Opened in 1998, Drinko Library is named for John Deaver Drinko, a 1942 graduate of Marshall (then College) and a staunch believer in the power of education.

There are small and group study rooms and study lounges as well as Mac and PC computers throughout the building. Our IT Service Desk is located on the first floor to assist students with computer and network issues. On the second floor, the Writing Center assists students with any writing assignment at any stage of the writing process.

Old Main

Our oldest building on campus is the home of most of our administrative offices, including the President’s office, Admissions, Registrar, Financial Aid, and the Bursar’s office. Old Main is made up of 5 separate buildings that were joined between 1868 and 1908.

Also housed in Old Main is the Marshall University Honors College. To be invited into the honors college, an incoming student must have a minimum 26 on the ACT and a high school GPA of 3.5 or higher. The benefits of being an Honors College student include early course registration, Honors housing, extended library borrowing, computer lab printing, an Honors study lounge, and specialized Honors seminars.

Smith Hall Complex

Smith Hall opened in 1967 and is named in honor of Stewart H. Smith, Marshall University President from 1946 to 1968. This complex of buildings is made up of Smith Music Hall, Smith Hall, and the Communications Building. On the first floor of these connected buildings are the offices for the College of Arts and Media, which consists of the schools of Art and Design, Journalism and Mass Communications, Music, and Theatre.

Smith Music Hall houses the School of Music, music classrooms, and rehearsal space. It also contains the Birke Art Gallery. This free gallery contains rotating exhibitions from students and faculty in the School of Art and Design.

The main Smith Hall tower contains classrooms and offices for many academic programs. In this building, you will find classes related to communication studies, mathematics, modern languages, and more. It also houses the Department of Communication Disorders’ Speech and Hearing Clinic.

Connected to Smith Hall is the Communications Building, which houses the School of Journalism and Mass Communications. The School of Journalism publishes The Parthenon campus newspaper and operates the WMUL Radio Station and a television studio. University College also has its offices in this building including the Tutoring Center which offers free tutoring to students in a variety of subjects.

Morrow Library

Constructed in 1930, Morrow Library is named after James E. Morrow, who headed Marshall College from 1872-73. Morrow Library houses the Morrow stacks and Special Collections which contain documents, photographs, and artifacts relating to the history of Marshall and the broader region. Also in this building is a federal repository for government documents with a collection of more than one million items. Morrow Library is well known on campus as a filming location for the movie We Are Marshall. The curved windows on the side of the building that faces Buskirk Field are recognizable from a pivotal scene in which the character Nate Ruffin enters the board meeting and leads the students below in the "We are Marshall" cheer. This scene was filmed on the top floor of Morrow and the students outside the building were on Buskirk Field.

Science Building

The Science Building was completed in 1950, expanded in 1984, and renovated in 1992. This is home to the College of Science, consisting of the schools of Biological & Environmental Sciences, Forensic & Criminal Justice Sciences, Mathematics & Applied Informatics, and Physical Sciences. The Science Building contains classrooms and state-of-the-art laboratories.

Arthur Weisberg Family Applied Engineering Complex

Opened in August 2015, the Weisberg Family Applied Engineering Complex is the home of the College of Engineering and Computer Sciences, the Marshall University Research Corporation, and the Rahall Transportation Institute. A number of innovative design factors, including a green roof, led to the facility earning LEED certification for environmental sustainability.

Byrd Biotechnology Center

Inside this building, faculty and students conduct research in a variety of fields including heart disease, diabetes, cancer, and Parkinson's disease.

Harris Hall

Harris Hall is home to several departments within the College of Liberal Arts including psychology, history, and geography. This building was completed in 1976 and named to honor Arvil Ernest Harris, a political science and social studies professor who served as Dean of the Graduate School from 1948-64.

East Hall

East Hall contains Virtual Learning Hubs where students can reserve rooms to connect to their virtual classes and participate in group work in a socially distanced environment. East Hall is also home to the English Language Institute. This office facilitates language learning and cultural educational understanding for Marshall's international students.

Prichard Hall

Home to the College of Health Professions, this building was completed in 1955 as a residence hall and renovated in 1973 to offices. Named for Lucy Prichard, a distinguished professor and faculty leader during the 1920s and 1930s, Prichard Hall also houses the Counseling Center, and the Office of Disability Services.

Gullickson Hall

Gullickson Hall houses the Army ROTC program as well as the Military and Veterans Affairs Office. It also contains offices, classrooms, and labs for Health Professions majors like exercise science and athletic training.

Cam Henderson Center/Ticket Office

The Cam Henderson Center is home to our men's and women's basketball teams, our women's volleyball team, and our women's swim and dive team (Frederick A. Fitch Natatorium). This facility opened in 1981 and is named for Cam Henderson, a football and basketball coach whose career at Marshall extended from 1935 to 1955. Tickets for all sporting events can be obtained at the ticket office, which is located on the first floor, 3rd Avenue side of the building. Student tickets for home games are included in the student's tuition and fees, and guest tickets are available at a discounted rate.

Joan C. Edwards Stadium

Home of the Thundering Herd football team and where many students, alumni, community members, and fans gather on Saturdays. It is one of only two collegiate football stadiums in the country named exclusively for a female. Marshall also boasts the nation's second-highest home winning percentage (0.848).

Rec Center

The Rec Center opened in 2009 and is a favorite facility of Marshall students and employees alike. Inside, you will find a pool (non-athletic), four basketball courts, three racquetball courts, men's and women's locker rooms, and a climbing wall. On the second floor you will find weight equipment and four studio rooms for exercise classes. The third floor has treadmills and more exercise equipment, as well as a 1/7-mile walking/running track. The Rec offers 32 intramural sports ranging from flag football to corn hole and checkers. Next to the Rec is the intramural field used for sports classes/games and Marching Thunder rehearsals. The Rec Center also employs many students for intramural referees, lifeguards, and general staff.

First Year Residence Halls (North and South)

These residence halls house freshmen only and feature double-occupancy rooms with a bathroom in each room. As with all Marshall residence halls, the buildings are locked 24-hours a day and residents must use their student ID to gain access to the building. Guests must be signed in at the front desk, which is staffed 24/7 by Resident Advisors, Resident Directors, or security guards. Marshall requires that all freshman and sophomores live on campus, unless they are granted an exemption for a university-recognized rationale.

Towers East & West/ Towers Marketplace

These residence halls have traditional-style double and single-occupancy rooms with two community bathrooms on each floor. Towers East and West are connected on the first floor by Towers Marketplace, one of three dining halls on campus. Towers Marketplace has been recently renovated with new options including The Den by Denny's, Mein Bowl, and 1837 Fresh Food Market.

Bliss Charles Public Safety Building/Emergency Poles

Located across 5th Avenue from Towers and opened in 1995, this building is home to our Marshall University Police Department. We have 35 full-time police officers who patrol campus 24 hours a day, 7 days a week, 365 days a year. Our crime statistics are posted on our website, and our police department emphasizes crime prevention through patrols and educational sessions on campus.

There are also emergency/help phones throughout campus that immediately connect students with our dispatcher. Response time of MUPD to any location on campus is two minutes or less. Our officers will also walk a student back to their residence hall, classroom building or to and from a student's car on campus, in order to ensure a student's feeling of security.

Holderby Hall/Office of Housing and Residence Life

The Housing and Residence Life office is located on the first floor of Holderby Hall. The office is open Monday-Friday 8am-5pm and is available for any questions regarding living on campus.

Marshall Commons

Commons is made up of four residence halls: Gibson, Wellman, Haymaker, and Willis. These were opened in 2003 and are located behind Harless Dining Hall. Each residence hall has three suite configurations: four single-occupancy bedrooms, two double-occupancy bedrooms, and four double-occupancy bedrooms. Students must be in the Honors College or have advanced standing to apply for housing in Commons.

Harless Dining Hall

Harless is a traditional, buffet-style dining hall that features a rotating menu.

Career Education

The Office of Career Education is available to help students and alumni in all phases of career development and job placement counseling. We encourage all students (including freshmen) to utilize Career Education for assistance with major exploration, resume development, interviewing skills, and other aspects of career preparation. Alumni of Marshall University receive lifetime assistance from Career Education.

Education Building

Formerly a lab school that provided education for children of Marshall faculty and staff, the Education Building is now home to the College of Education and Professional Development, Marshall's oldest academic program. An extensive renovation in 2019 updated classrooms and labs with new technology.

Campus Christian Center

Privately owned by a coalition of churches, this building houses various Christian organizations, having services and activities throughout the week.

Buskirk Hall

Opened in 1965 as West Hall, it was renamed in 1976 to honor Lillian Helms Buskirk, who was Dean of Women from 1941 to 1970. This residence hall is the only single-gender hall on campus and is open to all female students, regardless of class standing.

Memorial Student Center/Memorial Fountain

The newly renovated Memorial Student Center is the primary hub for activities and student life on campus. It contains the campus bookstore, meeting rooms, the Office of Student Affairs, LGBTQ+ Center, the Center for African American Students, and the Women's Center. It is also home to the LEAD Center which oversees more than 230 student organizations. The Memorial Student Center Food Court dining hall has a Chick-Fil-A, Steak and Shake, La Famiglia, and Starbucks.

The plaza (campus side of the student center) is where you will find our Memorial Fountain. This has become an icon of Marshall University, created in honor of the 75 players, staff, and community members who died when the plane bringing them back from a game against East Carolina crashed just before landing on November 14, 1970. Each year, a ceremony takes place on the date of the crash to turn off the water. The Memorial Fountain remains quiet until the waters are turned back on the day of the spring football scrimmage.
